

Crystal balls, mea culpas and the market

By Jim Weed

Fortunately, I don't get it wrong very often, or at least I don't get called out for many mistakes in these pages.

By and large I strive for accurate reporting when providing history or auction reports to you.

My opinions are mine and mine alone. So, when I pontificate on the market and where I think it is headed and I get it wrong, well, I hope you realize that my crystal ball has not always been as clear as I would like.

If it was, I would have foreseen each and every move the market has made in the last forty years or so and I would not be here writing but living on some tropical island paid for with the profits of foresight.

That said, I do try to anticipate trends in the market and bring those trends to you. Usually, it is the passage of time that allows us to look back and determine when a market has shifted.

A couple of issues ago, 4603, to be exact, I reported on several auctions from Kissimmee, Florida, and Scottsdale, Arizona. There were two cars I reported on that were not true.

The first one was an Enzo offered at RM Sotheby's. It was yellow and appeared to be a great car. Yellow with cuoio interior. I claimed this car had sold. It did not. It was bid to $2.2 million which is a price I thought it could have sold at.

Supercars like the Enzo had been fairly hot, and I am surprised it was not bid a bit higher. I thought the estimate range was reasonable.

I had watched the RM Sotheby's auction live through the internet and was trying to keep up with the bidding. One of the downsides of internet watching is not being able to get a feel of the crowd in the room.

I think auctions are much more exciting live.

The hammer fell and I heard the price and assumed it had sold. The owner, who is a subscriber, contacted me to set me straight. His point of view was, he thought the car should have brought more and he is allowed to have that opinion. He loves the car, loves the color, and generally enjoys the experience of owning an Enzo. More power to him.

While the car didn't sell, and the owner was not willing to compromise on the price, the event does tell us something of the state of the market.

The market has been in slow decline over the last several years. Six years to be exact. The market peaked in 2014 and has been in decline since.

Several models have experienced small booms since that time. 308s, 348s, 355s all experienced a bump, as did Boxers and Testarossas. Supercars were also hot.

It would now appear all models have settled down and I don't see any Ferrari setting the world on fire.

The market is always in some state of flux. The principles that drive the market, any market, are the same. Supply and demand. Fortunately, from 2014 to today there have not been a mass of cars coming to market. Sales have been steady, and cars have found new homes.

If too many Ferraris flood the market, prices will drop. Ferrari corporate understands this philosophy all too well.

Conversely, if demand rises with too few cars, the market rises. You only need to look at the current housing market to see those forces at work.

There are a few caveats. Good cars, I mean exceptional cars, will always bring a premium. Collectors want to have the best example with the lowest mileage in perfect condition with impeccable credentials.

When looking at the market in general we tend to look at these examples as the ones setting the market.

Yes, one Lusso, owned by Steve McQueen, set into motion a multi-year rise in all Ferrari prices. But the real market is made up of good, average, or above average Ferraris.

Watching this segment reveals the direction of the market in general. The 'tell' is when an average car gets exceptional results.

Which brings me to my other mea culpa. RM Sotheby's also sold a 550 Maranello. I looked at the photos online and watched the bidding. I reported the sale at $120,000, which seemed reasonable for a 550 Maranello in basic red with tan.

No, it sold for $257,600. As I was told by another subscriber, it was an exceptional example. Perfect in every way. I'm not sure I see it; yeah, it was nice, but not rare. Especially with 4,406 miles. Yes, it was a manual, but then again they all are.

I can't be sure because my crystal ball is still a bit cloudy, but are we seeing the beginning of another turn in the market? I think I may need to pay a little more attention.

RM Sotheby's Paris Auction Feb. 13, 2021

365 GT4/BB, S/N 18261 (1974). Oro Chiaro with beige leather. No reserve. Only three were originally finished in Oro Chiaro. Delivered new to the U.S. in January of 1975 and purchased by J.G. Walker, Jr. of Tyler, Texas, through Luigi Chinetti Motors. In 1983, it was for sale in the Ferrari Market Letter, showing 6,000 miles. In April of 1987, it was offered for sale again in the Ferrari Market Letter, now with 11,000 miles. In 1988, the car was exported to Sweden. The car would remain with that owner for the following twenty-seven years. Offered for sale in 2015, the car was sold to Germany and acquired by the consignor in 2016. Invoices show timing belts were replaced in 2015, and has been driven 300 km. since. Lot 116. Sold for $327,254.

308 GTS, S/N 28431 (1979). Oro Chiaro with beige leather. Offered without reserve. Delivered new to Italy. Italian registration documents show the car remained in Italy through 2016 with the Bergamini family. Exported to Germany. Granted Classiche certification in 2016. Known history from new. Lot 115. Sold for $127,265.

348 GT COMPETIZIONE, VIN ZF-FUA35B000099107 (1994). Red. Delivered new to Shelton Sports Cars of Fort Lauderdale, Florida. One of four 348 GT Michelotto Competizioni to be delivered to the United States. Special-ordered with a fire-extinguisher system and MOMO racing seats. Shown at Concorso Italiano in 1997. Later acquired by a Texas owner where it remained in a large collection. Sold by RM Sotheby's to the consignor in 2010. Never raced and only driven in non-competitive track days. Subsequently exported to Germany, the car has continued to be used for non-competitive track days. 3,503 km. In February of 2019, a gearbox rebuild and timing belts were replaced. Eligible for a handful of historic racing events, including Le Mans Classic. Lot 148. Sold for $381,796.

330 P2 Junior, S/N 28. Red. No reserve. Produced in the early 1990s. This example is ready to be used and enjoyed. Powered by a 5.0 hp Honda engine, like every other De La Chapelle Junior car it was built entirely to special order. Finished in Ferrari red with racing roundels donning the number three. Presented in well-preserved condition, even forty years after these cars came to market, this 330 P2 Junior would be the ultimate gift. Lot 108. Sold for $145,445.

Prancing Horse 65

By Jim Riff

Nobody is born wanting a Ferrari. There is some event or experience that triggers the desire to own one. It can come from a childhood memory or adult exposure. Either way there is a sound, smell or look that creates a place in your mind to store the experience. At some point that memory comes back, and you become a true Ferraristi.

Jim Riff shares his first experience with the Prancing Horse. Enjoy! JW

It was a cool, clear, late afternoon in October 1963 when Ken and I pulled onto Utah's Highway 40 and headed the new Corvette into the setting sun. Some of the fond recollections of my college days still reverberate in my spine as I recall my first encounter with the real Italian Stallion – Ferrari!

With the pulsating Beach Boys beat blasting from that wonder bar radio, it was the end of the first big exam of the semester and Reno was just a blast away. Salt Lake City was a nice town, but Midwesterners needed real night life to drench our inner self.

The smell of damp hay filtered through my head with the thoughts of Jack Daniels and Channel #5 on the now dim horizon. As a modern day go-kart the Vette was potent and not to be fooled with on the open highway.

As we passed the city of Clive the stark clear frontier of the Bonneville Salt Flats lay ahead. We entered U.S. 40, a two lane runway that stretched out in front of us. Radio station KSL in Salt Lake City began the all night tribute to Brian, Mike and Dennis, the California Surfers!

As the lights of the "last" Conoco station faded in the rear view mirror all became tranquil. 125 m.p.h. and tranquil, but it was!

Ken motioned with his thumb rearward, a quick glance seemed to show a dim set of lights "miles" back. I shrugged my shoulders and gave a questioned look – so what?

A cop, a beer truck, a Chrysler 300D, what? In any event we were driving the fastest stuff invented by man – 360 hp, fuel injected, the way it is supposed to be!

Not more than five minutes passed when a beam of light reflected off the glass in front of me, I turned around and now it was apparent that it was indeed a pair of lights as the parallax of distance now separated the charging lamps into a pair of orange circles. So what.

Ken added a couple of hundred rpm and with a Winston Churchill victory sign I slid down in the red vinyl bucket to absorb the melody of "Help Me Rhonda" at 104 d.b. Those old Delco radios knew how to do it!

A feeling of arrest suddenly grabbed both of us as the real possibility of 'cop' was felt. As the now large headlamps began to close too close. Damn, we were doing 135 m.p.h. What the hell could close on us at that speed?

Ken stiffened his arms against the plastic wheel, and "Surfin U.S.A." was the tempo. The water temperature was climbing but the air was cooling rapidly as the sun's heat was two hours gone.

Fear gripped us as $10 per mile over the limit was the going fine in those parts. That's $700 at our present velocity. Ah, but the Nevada boarder was but 12 miles ahead, only five minutes.

The Vette could do it if anything could, after all it was the fastest thing on earth. 205 degrees water temperature and still climbing, what was wrong? Bearings, water pump, or over-work?

No time to worry now, 9 miles to the wide open speed limits of Nevada, but that guy was gaining rapidly, yes, rapidly and we were flat out at 140! The radio was all but noise as we pulled out KSL's radio and the wind noise in the convertible was painful.

We thought the culprit was the Dana under us, but it was coming from the car overtaking us on our left flank. Ken said, "I'll bet it is his super charger."

As we crossed the Nevada border, it was apparent that it was red. They don't make red cop cars; fire trucks yes, but not a 140 m.p.h. fire truck!

It was squat, and right-hand drive, so we could see the drivers face. We scrambled over the invisible state line side by side, the red car "slowed" to our speed! I could tell his motor was whining at a lower pitch as he pulled along side.

Ken was dumbfounded, 140 m.p.h. flat out, overheating, and this thing pulls up for a look see.

What was it?

It surely wasn't American, not at that speed, and certainly not right-hand drive. The two drivers eyed each other and then looked straight ahead. I sat up straight to see this thing.

Wire wheels, scoops all over, bounding like a speed boat. Wow! Then he shifted – I don't know if it was up, down or sideways, but he shifted the thing. Our motor was drowned out by the roar as his pipes crossed our beam.

He pulled away from our pride and joy. As the red tail crossed into our lights one word gleamed like a diamond – Ferrari! He literally disappeared into the horizon and we never saw that red bullet again. It pulled away at 140!

I must have told everybody I knew that we were humiliated while driving the fastest car on earth. That memory remained with me as vivid as Ohm's law.

It reared its head later in my life as the magical attraction of Ferrari once again reincarnated itself, and I now have one of my own. I still like the Beach Boys music, and I can still smell the Castor oil on that cool fall night of my youth. Dèjà vu!

I seriously considered what photo I might use for this article. In the end I decided I would let your imagination decide how to fill in the blank.

Jim Riff was instrumental in compiling information in the early days for Ferrari owners across the land with the original Ferrari Tuning Tips and Techniques. This bible often was the only information available to owners trying to keep these magnificent steeds running in top condition.

The third edition was updated by Gerald Roush and John Apen in 1975 and sold through FAF Motorcars. I sold hundreds of these manuals during my time there. A Google search will find this manual is still available.

Riff's professional life as an electrical engineer provided the skill to rebuild the famous red voltage regulator. If there is one in your car, chances are Riff has touched it.

Jim Riff has owned 250 GT/L S/N 4537 GT since 1972. A true Ferraristi.

Future Auctions Staying Ahead of the Curve

The Ferrari Market Letter has always tried to keep you informed of the market and the direction Ferrari values are going.

Our auction reviews give you a sense of the quality of Ferraris sold, or not sold, as the case may be.

Our Asking Price Index tracks the percentage of change in the market and tries to give you a historical perspective of past values.

This new column will provide you a look forward to future auctions by highlighting Ferraris coming onto the market.

We will attempt to provide Ferraris offered by various auction companies. We will not provide history or condition reports in the descriptions, only who and when the auction will be held, the estimate range and basic color and mileage information.

The point will be to provide a heads-up of Ferraris coming to market. The potential buyer always has the ability to contact us for a history report.

We expect there will be some refinement of this list as we move forward but we hope it helps to give you, the buyer, a central location to quickly identify Ferraris you may be interested to bid on and where they may be presented.

246 GT/LM, S/N 02678 (1971 Euro. prod.). Red. Commissioned by Luigi Chinetti for his North American Racing Team (N.A.R.T.) through Ferrari's "Servizio Assistenza Clienti" department. The car was prepared to racing specifications. 02678 had a successful race at LeMans, however, with Laffeach and Doncieux bringing the car to a 17th place overall and 2nd in class finish. After Le Mans 02678 went back to Ferrari for repairs from the damage suffered. After the repairs, the car was sent back to Chinetti and then sold to Harley Cluxton who wanted to race it in the last race of the 1972 World Manufacturers Championship race at Watkins Glen. It was at Watkins Glen that the car carried the number 24 with the same sponsorship livery the car displays today (now on number 46). After the Watkins Glen race Cluxton traded 02678 to Joe Marchetti, who sold the car to John Carmack in 1973 and kept it until 1981 when he sold it to the current owner. 15,742 km. $2,500,000. 4526
