

Wasted Time By Jim Weed

I'm missing car events. I've been sheltering, or am I sheltered, from the normal events that make for a fun and busy year. Since Amelia Island I haven't attended any of the usual events we cover. Mainly because they have all been canceled.

Celebration Florida is one of the more fun, low-key events, with newer Ferraris lined up and down the street. Throngs of people mass the sidewalks and mingle between the cars. The cars are judged with excellent judging talent, but it doesn't have the same feel as Cavallino or Pebble Beach. The owners don't seem to sweat the details which takes a lot of pressure off the judging. The fun is sharing with hundreds of children who may be able, for the first time, to get up close to a Ferrari. How many of you remember the first time you either saw or heard your first Ferrari?

I surely remember my first Ferrari experience. I must have been about fifteen. My friend and I were riding bicycles around Stone Mountain Park. There at the Inn was a yellow car. We had never seen anything like it before. Curvy and YELLOW, it called us from the street into the parking lot.

We walked all around the beautiful looking machine. Low in the front with scoops on the sides. It looked like the engine might be in the back. The nose had covered headlights, something we had never seen before. Right in the middle low on the nose was a rectangular yellow badge. It said 'Dino'.

We had never heard of a Dino before. The wheels had yellow emblems in the center. They also said 'Dino'. As we moved around the back right there on the rear panel was an emblem with the name of this car. It said 'Dino GT'.

We had never heard of a Dino much less a Dino GT, but it must be something special. At fifteen my attention span was pretty short and within a week I forgot about the little yellow sportscar.

Five years later I started hauling cars for FAF Motorcars and a couple years after that I began to work in the parts department. It didn't take long to know every model and part of every Ferrari made. The Dino memory remained far back in my mind until one day I was talking on the phone with a customer.

The image of that day and what I saw as I walked around the car came back in a flash. I don't know if in my subconscious that early experience influenced my wanting to work for FAF or not. Maybe I had seen a Dino at FAF; I had friends who worked there, and there was a yearning to do anything I could to get a job there. Who knows? I can say, forty years later, it seems to have worked out okay.

Sorry for the divergence. The point I was trying to make is Ferraris should be shared. You never know how your Ferrari is going to have an influence on someone else. Dreams must begin somewhere.

The Ferrari Club of America annual meet is another one of those must-attend events. This year we were going to Mont Tremblant in Canada to hopefully see Ferraris we hadn't seen before. A different region hosts the meet each year and while many of the perfect concours cars travel around to exclusive meets like Cavallino and Pebble Beach, there are still plenty that never travel far away from home.

Last year the meet was in Scottsdale, Arizona, and we saw many cars that don't leave the southwestern area. Sure, many of the cars have been seen before at other annual meets or the afore-mentioned events but there are always new examples that come out when the event is in their backyard.

See, I love them all. It makes no difference to me if I see a 250 GTO or a 288 GTO. I am just as excited to see a 400 GT as I am to see a 400 SA. Each Ferrari has something to see.

I have favorites, everybody has; I just like them all. My favorites? Personally, I like a 250 GT PF Coupe and a 330 GT 2+2. 365 GT4 2+2 is a mouthful so it is easier to say I like the 400 GT series, but I lean more towards the carbureted versions. Same goes for 365 or 512 Boxers; injected ones are nice, but the raw instant acceleration of the carbureted cars is addicting. My ultimate ride would have to be a 288 GTO.

I know Cathy would rather have a Daytona Spider, only in red, thank you. If we ever hit the lottery that will be her first purchase, mine will be a 288.

If that were to happen you would not see it on the lawn at Cavallino or Pebble. Unless I drove it there and only then would I run it through the car wash with the windows up. I would drive it everywhere.

My goal would be to have the highest mileage GTO on the planet. Run to the store for groceries? Sure, it can't carry much, that means more trips! Need to go to Pebble Beach? Let's see, two days, maybe three, from Atlanta sounds about right. Twenty-five hundred miles across the country in a 288 GTO can only be filled with fantastic experiences.

My former FAF boss, John Apen, and his son drove 250 GT LWB Berlinetta S/N 0703 GT to Monterey from Atlanta. It was nearly a forty-year-old Ferrari then. How many can claim the same?

0703 1995 04-00 pg 2 At John Apen house

Clearly, my personal taste leans towards the more subtle Ferraris. I once owned a 330 GT 2+2 and have spent a lot of seat time in many 400 GT series cars. The 365 GT4 2+2, there's that mouthful again, and the other 400 GT and 400i cars are often under appreciated.

While not as agile on the track as many other Ferraris they have a lot of get-up-and-go. Even the automatic versions have decent performance. If you ever get the chance to test drive one, do not, I repeat, do not, pass it up. These are Grand Touring cars in style. Few luxury cars can cruise all day long close to the sub-hundred mark and not raise a single eyebrow as you blow past.

Subtle colors work best, it's easier to blend into traffic and as long as there is something else with bright color paint nearby. It always seems the red BMW or Corvette just got an undeserved ticket.

But I digress. I love all Ferraris regardless of model, type or condition, each and every one is special. I recognize it is special because it is special to you. You love your car and treat it as you see fit. Some enjoy the perfection of a perfect restoration. Some like to occasionally use their Ferrari and personalize it to their taste. I do not judge. It is the fact you love it that makes me love it.

We will have to wait until next July to go to Portland and enjoy the delights that await in the northwest corner of the United States.

Since I have mentally traveled to the west coast, I must mention Pebble Beach. Not just Pebble, but the entire week-long list of activities. I should have just returned from several days of automotive crazy. Concorso Italiano, The Quail, Laguna Seca and the crowning event of them all, the Pebble Beach Concours.

Not this year will we see an entire cornucopia of Italian machinery lined up in several grassy fields at Concorso Italiano. In this place not only Ferraris are lined up but Alfa Romeos, Fiats, Maseratis, Lancias and Lamborghinis with other known and obscure makes thrown in. Iso and Intermeccanica come to mind. There is much to look at and enjoy. Again, to me, it is the passion people have for the car they bring, Ferrari or Fiat, each owner loves his car and is willing to proudly display it for us to enjoy.

The same goes for The Quail. Cars and passion, but The Quail has much more ambiance to it. Cars and grass go well together but when good food is added in it can only be better. The Ferrari selection is always excellent but there is so much more.

Every brand of hypercar is on display along with many other makes. While there are areas with a particular theme, there are areas with a variety that rival the most exotic parking lot ever encountered.

I think people watching is best at The Quail. Nouveau-riche mingle with nouveau-riche wannabes who mingle with, well, guys like me who are there to enjoy the cars. No, I don't wear the right shoes or watch. There is no rich uncle paving the way for my future.

Which brings me to the Pebble Beach Concours. There is little new money here; if there is, it's not flaunted. This event brings out the best in automotive history. None of these car owners woke up one morning and decided to dust off the car and take it to Pebble Beach.

Many hours of restoration have gone into almost every car displayed. I would bet even the preservation cars get plenty of care before they would be invited for display. To be invited to Pebble Beach is a great honor and the selection process is extremely rigorous.

The automobiles displayed are truly the best of the best hands down. Participants and spectators come from around the world to experience the beautiful cars and scenery on the Monterey peninsula.

0428MD 2019 08-18 pg 6 Tom Peck - Pebble Beach

When I return home and upload the pictures from Monterey weekend, I found I had taken about fifteen hundred photos. Recently, I have finally finished identifying each car, labeled, and filed all those photographs.

Of course, today we don't print pictures like in the old days; everything is digital. In order keep from putting a jump drive on a shelf with a label 'Monterey 2019' and never looking at those memories again, something must be done with the photos.

One of the many tasks we do here at the Ferrari Market Letter is record information in the files. Years ago, everything was put into a file folder with a serial number written in the top corner and placed into a file cabinet.

In the beginning, when Gerald Roush began to record owners and histories on the cars, the total production of Ferraris was around twelve thousand cars. Let's see, in 1972, serial numbers for V-12 production cars was around 16000.

Ferrari only used odd numbers for street cars so from 1948, starting with car S/N 001 S to near the end of 1972 with a Daytona S/N 16663, is roughly 8,300 cars.

Dino production used even-numbered serial numbers and near the end of 1972 those serial numbers were in the 5400 range. One-half of that is another 2,700 cars.

By 1972 Ferrari was out of the competition sports car business. The 512S and M series finished up in 1970 with a high S/N 1050. Since competition cars are all even numbers, one half is 525 total competition cars made.

One must also add in a number of Formula cars which have their own repeating numbering system that makes it difficult to accurately track those cars. Often Ferrari would take last year's car and modify it so much it was given a new number. This makes many of the Formula cars difficult to track. So, up to 1972 let's add another eighty cars to the total.

In the beginning the task of chasing down each car and recording its history didn't seem like a daunting task. Regional Ferrari meets had a few Ferraris show up and each serial number was recorded with an owner's name. If there were twenty-five to fifty Ferraris present it was a big meeting.

Film came in rolls of 12, 24 and 36 exposures. Once bought and photos taken, that roll would have to be dropped off at the closest Fox Photo or Picture Hut store for developing. One week later you would pick up your photos and see if they all came out.

With the advent of phone and digital cameras all the time and expense of physical film is history. My camera can take and hold thousands and thousands of photos. Even my phone can hold thousands. This is both a blessing and a curse.

With limited capability each shot was framed and carefully taken. If you only had 36 shots each one was made to count. Today I can end up with twenty five shots of just the left-hand fender vent from sixteen different angles.

But, what to do with them and what do I need to do to preserve this information? In addition to the file cabinets that can hold various scraps of paper and photos, the computer holds the digital photos. We now make a folder for each serial number, identified by car, to hold the digital information we collect.

Back to those fifteen hundred photos from Monterey week. Each photo is identified by the Ferrari's serial number and filed. Since it is important to know when and where a photo was taken each one gets labeled. Multiple cars at multiple events need to be differentiated.

A typical format I use has seemed to work the best for keeping photos organized. All photos are kept as JPEG or JPG files. This make it self-sorting and scrolling easier. The format I use looks like this: 0428MD 2019 08-18 pg 6 Tom Peck - Pebble Beach.

Serial number first, date of the event (year, month, day), page number or picture number, owners name or event and then source. Labeling each photo takes time but it does several things. If there are several Ferraris in the photo, I can copy the same photo into each folder.

In addition to filing photos by serial number for easy retrieval I also have a folder for, say Pebble Beach 2019. So, I can keep a copy in that folder also. Now if I know a car was at Pebble I can go to that year and see all the cars on display.

Seems simple, right? It does make it easy to handle current events but what about past events? Gerald did a good job in taking pictures and even filing them into the proper folder. What he didn't always do was to write the place or date on the back of the photos.

While taking a folder from the file cabinet to scan I run across these undated, unknown photos. I have been around long enough to be able to identify most locations. The trees in California are different from the trees in Michigan. Pebble Beach looks like Pebble Beach no matter which year the photos are taken. The hard part is determining what year the photo was taken. Clothing, hair styles, and even shrubbery help to identify an era. If I don't know, I guess the year and date the best I can.

Recently I was scanning an old Prancing Horse where there were several pages of photos from the 1978 FCA Annual Meet at Road Atlanta. The host hotel was Stouffer's Pine Isle Resort near Lake Lanier. I was there and at Road Atlanta. Armed with the date and a list of serial numbers from the article I began to delve into each cars file.

5901 1978 06-25 pg 5 FCA Annual Meet, Road Atlanta, GA - JF Bloemendaal

Adding a folder for the 1978 FCA Annual Meet I began to copy the photos into that file. Pretty soon I had a good picture history of the meet, the cars that attended and all in one place. I know I will run across photos in the future and using known photos I will be able to pin down time and places.

Once, I found a photo taken at Pebble Beach. It was a red Ferrari and not identifiable by serial number, but there was a car in the background that was identifiable. It was an easy search to sift through several concours shots to find what year the background car was a participant. Through that I was able to identify the initial Ferrari.

So, back the beginning of this article, I'm missing car events. I'm now caught up filing photos from past events and looking forward to next year. With any luck we will get through sheltering and take bold steps to venture out to see Ferraris gathered in fields of green with passionate owners willing to bring their special Ferrari to be shared.

While it may seem this year has been wasted time, I think of it being extremely productive. Productive or not, I am ready to see more Ferraris!

Paraphrasing Shakespeare's Hamlet, "...that is the question" By Tom Ferrara

In 2017, while waiting to be seated at a restaurant in Maine, a late middle-aged gentleman and his wife pulled up in a McLaren 570. We had the chance to chat. His comment about purchasing the car was this:

"I decided to buy it while I was still able to get in and out of it."

So true...

Owning an F355, one can get a real sense of what he meant!

Fast forward to July 11, 2019, and Ferrari holds its F8 Tributo reveal in Brooklyn, NY. It's pouring rain, but parking is indoors. The Rosso Corsa F8 eventually is driven out on the red carpet. The reaction is spontaneous and exciting!

My first thought is how evolutionary beautiful the 488 styling was resculpted and the resemblance of the rear to the F355. Interestingly and somewhat ironically, the F355 evolved beautifully from the 348. The F8 nose also reminds one of the 1968 Can-Am 350P by Drogo, having seen that car race at Bridgehampton as a youngster.

But I digress...

On Thursday, July 18, 2019, Nick Unnold, lifelong employee of Miller Motorcars, consummate gentleman, and sales advisor, specced-out my 2020 F8 Tributo.

Going into the situation, the exterior color was pre-determined thanks to my friendship with a well-known Ferrari collector. In a conversation about one of his Ferrari's the question was raised about its original color. It was delivered in Rosso Barchetta; now considered a premium Ferrari historic color.

Matched with an equally historic (and not quite expensive) gray interior (Extracampionario, Old Range Lather" (sic)), the decision was made, and the order placed.

Little did anyone know a pandemic was on the horizon seven months later.

Interestingly enough, Nick from Miller told me in December, 2019, that they had the ability to move my order up in line from Summer/Fall, 2020, to April, 2020. That triggered an interesting twist of fate.

Maranello closed operations on March 8, 2020, due to the COVID-19 pandemic ravaging Northern Italy; that's the exact same date identified by the dealer status report as the beginning production date for my F8.

Anyway, fast forward, the F8 made its way into Miller's hands on Friday, June 26th. The question then became, "To wrap, or not to wrap?" As Nick suggested, given the special (and expensive) historic paint, a complete body wrap made sense.

That's where Touch of Glass (TOG) in Bedford Hills, NY, [<https://togdetailstudio.com/>] came in.

Detailer and artist Anthony Federico, had previously helped salvage a poorly-prepped dealer detailing on my then new 2013 C6 ZR1 Corvette; literally, the last one of that model. He also beautifully detailed and wrapped my F355 Spider, so his talent was well established. Since those two assignments, Anthony has teamed up with a silent partner to establish his detailing shop.

Labeling it a "shop" is an insult. Think of the cleanliness of a surgical theatre combined with the beauty of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. My friend, John Henkel, who heads up service at Miller Motorcars, whose shop itself is immaculate, commented, "It competes with my shop in cleanliness!"

The F8 was shipped to Touch of Glass and into Anthony Federico and Lenny Piedmont's good hands.

Just a brief tutorial on car wraps.

Paint protection film is relatively standard among retailers and installers; it's the expertise, science, and venue of installation that makes a tremendous difference. That's what makes Touch of Glass unique. They chose to do a high-end, self-healing film from Suntek. In itself, that is definitely a selling point; however, it really comes down to the installation process.

Anthony and his team have over twenty years experience in this field. His Paint Protection Film (PPF) specialist has a background in graphic design (that's the inherently artistic element you cannot duplicate). He approaches each project with a completely different mindset compared to most other installers.

This is especially true with a sculpted body like the F8 with innumerable and complex body lines that are extremely subtle to the eye, and necessitate a skilled approach. For situations like this, Anthony combines pre-cut software-engineered film stencils with his inherent creative talents and knowledge to provide each client truly unmatched quality.

Along the way as the job progresses, photos and videos document not only the progress, but the paint areas that need correction (orange peel, swirls, mismatched color). It's almost shocking how imperfect a paint job is on a brand new vehicle that appears perfect to the novice, until Dr. Anthony does his paint diagnosis!

What also makes a significant difference is that while a pre-cut stencil might go to the edge of a body panel, Anthony customizes it to make sure it goes over and overlaps the edge. He will even put a slight slit somewhere that is potentially known to be a trouble spot that may start to bubble over time; it's not just how it looks now, but how it will look in the future. Anthony also wants a customer, not just now, but also in the future. It makes a huge difference as it's really not about the car, but the relationship.

As once said by the Benedictine Monk, Thomas Merton: "In the end, relationships save everything."

Having seen the end result of his artwork on the F8, that's the approach taken by Anthony and TOG. So in the end, the answer to Shakespeare's query is, yes it is worth having Touch of Glass do the wrap!
